The original BREI BR&E Coordinator Certification course was developed at the University of Minnesota by George Morse in 1990. Subsequently, Kathleen Tweeten, North Dakota State University, and Tom Ilvento, University of Delaware, helped refine the course with major revisions by Kathy Tweeten and George Morse in 1995. It was used for certification until 2005. Hank Cothran, University of Florida Extension developed a new course for certification in 2005 which was used until 2009. The original course by Morse again underwent major revisions in 2010 by Kathy Tweeten, and Alan Barefield, then the Associate Director of the Southern Rural Development Center, and is the course used today for the BREI Fundamentals Certification of BR&E Coordinators.
